Retired NFL Player Advance Agreements

Re:

Court Notice of NFL Equity Purchase Contract Reviews; Signature Verifying Acceptance of Terms for Supplemental Income, Not for Personal Survival Income.

Dear Retired NFL Client with An Equity Purchase Contract:

Cambridge Capital ("CC") has been advised that numerous investment firms, including CC, are being investigated by NFL Class Counsel, Chris Seeger, Esq., of SeegerWeiss, LLP, for their equity purchase contract terms. Attached please find Judge Brody's Order, attachments, as well as letter from Chris Seeger, Esq. In order to ensure that you are knowingly comfortable and accepting of the equity purchase contract terms, and that these funds were for supplemental income, not for personal survival income, CC will be reviewing and updating the equity purchase contracts for reasonableness. CC is sending this letter to verify that you agree to the CC returns on equity purchases, including CC's reduced advance amounts that some of you have wisely chosen in order to protect your long-term security. CC is also verifying that you will not be challenging CC's equity purchase contract returns, and will accept payment from your settlement consistent with the CC equity purchase contract terms.

As these concerns are resolved by both CC and your personal review of your advance agreement and its terms, by yourself and any appropriate party, including your lawyer, and signing verifying your acceptance, CC will be able to continue to make further advancements. If you have done the same, and will not be challenging the advance contract terms, please sign below.

Sincerely,

Addys Walker, Partner
